Daily Routine

Class : 1A – Tarbiyah - Islamic Studies

I generally wake up on the time of Shubuh prayer thanks to the most effective alarm, it's the adzan that sounds really loud, because my house is in front of mosque. And then I get prepared to pray with jama'ah in the mosque. But, if I wake up early, sometimes I do the qiyamul-lail. Sometimes.

And I can say that I don't start my day with a cup coffee, but with *adzkarush-shoba*h (the morning dzikr). That dzikr can take 15-30 minutes, but if I'm not totally focus on it, it will take a bit longer time than usual.

After I finish my quality time with Allah, I eat my breakfast that made by my mom. But if my mom isn't around, I make my breakfast on my own. Usually fried rice or omelette and a cup of less-sugar coffee.

Since I resigned from my previous job, my daily life is not as productive as the time when I was in the office. Then I started to work by helping my neighbor who I consider him as my brother in his Muslim apparel store. Besides that, I become a mercenary in the world of translation. I mean if there is a document or movie to translate, then I take it, do it and then I get paid. Those documents that I translate is not a state-level docs, but an organization-state docs. If there is no task from my clients, I finish my college homeworks, if exist.

And when it's afternoon, I take a break and chill in my secret place. I have schedule on attending shar'i courses, the subjects are about Tawheed (Monotheism), Fiqh (Islamic Jurisprudence) and Tazkiyatun-Nufoos (Purifying Soul). after Maghrib or 'Isya. On the night of Monday, Friday and Saturday. It finishes at 9 PM, which is the time for me to get on bed and sleep.

That’s my daily routine on online college week, but if it’s offline college week, I go to the campus of YAMISA Academy on Friday and Saturday at 12.45 PM and Sunday at 07.45 AM.
